SPRUCING UP SAN FRAN

In a 1930s auto house building in San Francisco's Presidio Heights, the new SPRUCE restaurant is luring hip neighborhood families and travelers with their two-Michelin-star-quality cuisine delivered in a "jeans and T-shirt" style. One of the Bay Area's hottest chefs, Mark Sullivan (chef at The Village Pub, the owners of which are opening Spruce), oversees a menu that moves from gourmet burgers to butter-poached lobster. Other fun elements: a gourmet takeaway program, a lounge outfitted with a fireplace and wingback chairs, and tables where you can sip a Sonoma vintage while playing a game of backgammon.
